NCG Grievance Policy

1. Scope and Purpose of Policy

This policy does not form part of colleague's contract of employment and does not confer any contractual rights. It applies to all NCG colleagues, who are employed either on a permanent or temporary basis.

2. Introduction

The purpose of this policy is to provide a framework within which any concerns relating to a colleagues employment are managed fairly, consistently and promptly. Some concerns may be managed informally in the first instance, where appropriate. Any issues raised should be specific to the colleague and be a current or recent concern, raised within a reasonable period of time from the most recent occurrence. NCG is committed to ensuring that all colleagues are treated with respect and consideration. Bullying and harassment is a serious matter. It is unacceptable in any form and will be dealt with in line with this policy.

3. Referral to an alternative policy / procedure

A grievance should not be used to resolve issues that are subject to another formal policy which has the right of appeal (e.g. NCG Disciplinary Policy or NCG Performance Management Policy). The right to appeal should be exercised under the relevant policy rather than raising a grievance.

Where there are serious concerns or suspicions regarding significant wrongdoing that should be disclosed in the interests of the public, this will be managed in line with the NCG Disclosure Policy.

Where a grievance is found to be deliberately vexatious or malicious this may be treated as a serious disciplinary offence and will be managed in line with the NCG Disciplinary Policy.

4. Grievance

A grievance is a concern raised verbally or in writing, about any aspect of a colleague's employment. Any potential grievance should not be raised on behalf of another colleague. A grievance must not be anonymous otherwise, it may not be pursued.

NCG has a duty of care to protect all colleagues and we may decide to pursue an issue independently, if it is appropriate to do so in the circumstances, even where a colleague may not want to pursue it further.

5. Informal management of a grievance

Where concerns regarding an aspect of a colleague's employment are raised with their manager, it should be managed informally in the first instance. Where a grievance is against a colleague's manager, they should speak informally to a more senior manager (e.g. Line manager's manager). Informal outcomes should be documented but may vary depending on the nature of the issue raised and what resolutions are possible.

6. Formal grievance procedure

Where the matter has not been resolved at an informal level, a formal grievance should be put in writing and submitted to a colleague's manager (appendix A). Where a grievance is against a colleague's manager, it should be submitted to a more senior manager (e.g. line manager's manager).

The grievance should detail:

- The nature of the issue
- Relevant facts, dates and witnesses
- Other evidence e.g. emails/documentation
- Evidence of attempts to resolve the issue informally
- Desired outcomes

Where a grievance is against another colleague, they will be informed of this.

7. Investigation

Where a formal grievance is submitted and hasn't been resolved informally, it will be investigated by a manager in order to establish the facts. All investigations should be carried out as soon as possible after the grievance has been submitted.

As part of the investigation, meetings may take place with all relevant individuals. As these meetings are informal there is no prior notice required no right to be accompanied.

NCG reserves the right to determine whether a meeting is the best means of investigation or whether something different is more appropriate.

8. Invite to a formal grievance meeting

Reasonable notice of a grievance meeting will be given in order to prepare. Normally this will be 7 calendar days, unless otherwise agreed.

Timeframes may be adjusted at the discretion of the investigation manager to allow sufficient time for the provision of alternative formats of documents to be made available.

The invite to the meeting will confirm the formal procedure is being implemented, the date, time and venue of the meeting and confirm any entitlements (i.e. the right to be accompanied).

9. Right to be accompanied

At formal meetings, colleagues have the right to be accompanied by a trade union representative or an NCG colleague.

The chosen companion will be allowed to address the meeting, respond on the colleagues behalf to any view expressed and sum up the case on their behalf. However, the meeting is essentially between the colleague and the manager, and is the colleague's opportunity to provide further details, so any questions put directly to the colleague should be responded to by them and not their companion.

Colleagues should make every effort to attend. If the colleague or their companion cannot attend a meeting at the date or time arranged, they should let the manager know as soon as possible and within reason agree an alternative date and time. If a colleague fails to attend without explanation, or fails to attend a rescheduled meeting, the meeting may take place in their absence.

If a colleague has disclosed an underlying health condition, suffer from a chronic illness or disability, the manager will consider requests for a non-participating health care provider to be present during formal meetings.

10. Note taking & recording

Other colleagues attending the meeting will include a note taker and may also involve a member of the HR team.

Recording equipment cannot be used at any time during meetings. Non-verbatim notes will be taken during the meeting, and colleagues will be provided with a copy of the notes from their meeting. The colleague or their representative are welcome to take their own notes.

11. During the formal meeting

At the meeting, the manager will ask the colleague to explain more about the issues raised. The colleague will be given every opportunity to explain issues relating to their grievance.

12. Outcomes following the formal meeting

Following the formal grievance meeting and subsequent investigation the outcome may be:

- The grievance is upheld
- The grievance is partially upheld
- The grievance is not upheld

For the above outcomes, additional recommendations may also be applicable i.e. training and coaching.

The outcome will be confirmed in writing and outlining any next steps, where appropriate. The colleague will be notified of their legal right to appeal.

13. Right of Appeal

Colleagues have the right to appeal against the outcome of a formal meeting. They should appeal in writing to the person identified in the outcome letter, stating the full grounds of their appeal within one calendar week of receipt of the outcome letter.

Any appeal should be exercised under the relevant policy rather than raising a separate grievance under the NCG Grievance Policy.

A manager will be appointed and a further meeting will be held to discuss the appeal. The colleague will have a right to bring a companion in line with other formal meetings. As the appeal meeting is formal, the same principles will apply to that of other formal meetings with regards to the meeting invitation, rights, attendees, responsibilities and expectations.

Following the formal appeal meeting, the outcome may be:

- The original decision is upheld
- The original decision is partially upheld
- The original decision is overturned

The outcome will be confirmed in writing, outlining any next steps, where appropriate. The appeal manager's decision is final and there is no further right of appeal.

14. Senior Post Holders and Senior Executive

Senior post holders and Senior Executive as defined in the Article of Government. Any grievance will be investigated by the Chair, where appropriate, or an appropriate manager as delegated by the Chair. Where a formal grievance is submitted, the colleague will be invited to a formal grievance meeting as per the process outlined in this policy. They will receive a response in writing in line with the above process. Should they wish to appeal the decision the appeal should be in writing to the members of the corporations, via the clerk of the corporation.

15. Variations to this policy / procedure

This procedure is intended as an overview of how to manage with any issues relating to employment, however, it may need to be adapted to suit the needs of each situation. On occasions, it may not be appropriate to follow each of the stages in turn or in the timescale suggested. Regardless of the stage at which this procedure is started, support will be offered and implemented to assist colleagues throughout the process.
